Department of State Development

MISSION

The Department of State Development leads investment, case management and regulation for the full minerals value chain, including the collection and promotion of precompetitive data to exploration, mining activity and closure.

An integrated 'one-stop-shop' framework for industry is delivered from initial exploration to operating mines and eventual rehabilitation, through the provision of leadership, policy, case management, advice and regulation.

PACE is part of this division and is a key economic driver designed to underpin successful exploration, leading to new resource discoveries and new mining and resource developments.
